

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Explain about technology and technical problems in communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- What kind of technological advance are you looking forward to the most? Why?
- Do you think the next generations will lead a better life thanks to technology? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can discuss how to deal with problems and ask for help and advice.
- I can ask for clarification or use rhetorical questions to emphasize a point.
- I can talk about future action.

Let's Explore!

Sally gives Peter some advice on how to meet new people. She should be his life coach!

* A "life coach" is a person who counsels people on important decisions to make at work or in their lives.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Sally: Hey Peter, what's going on?

Peter: Things didn't work out with Tracy in the end, so now I'm single again. Do you know how hard it is to meet someone in this town?

Sally: Trust me, Peter. I know all about this problem. I'm finishing a feature on new technologies for the magazine later. I have a few tips that may help you. I think you should try meeting people online.

Peter: Can you tell me how to get started? Do you think that I can meet my next girlfriend through a search engine?

Sally: Not exactly. You're a digital native, you should know about these things!

Peter: I'm not an advocate of new technologies like you, though!

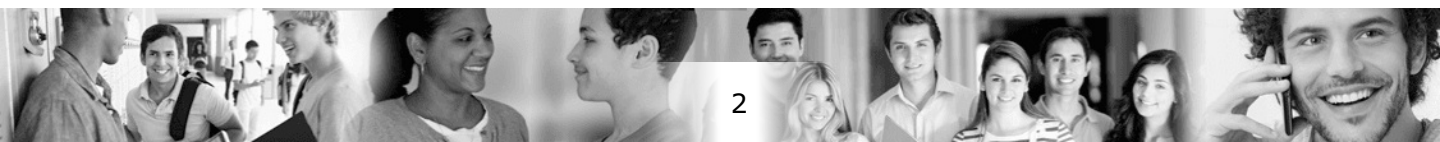

Sally: First, make sure that your social media pages are up-to-date. You're not going to meet anyone with a profile that is out-of-date!

Peter: OK. I'll do that this weekend. Don't you think that meeting people online sounds too much like virtual reality?

Sally: You could meet them in real life afterwards. There's a singles night nearby next Tuesday.

Peter: So, I should meet a girl online first, and then take her to a bar? That doesn't sound user-friendly.

Sally: Oh Peter, you might want to reboot your love life!

Let's Practice!

Peter is lucky to have a friend like Sally.

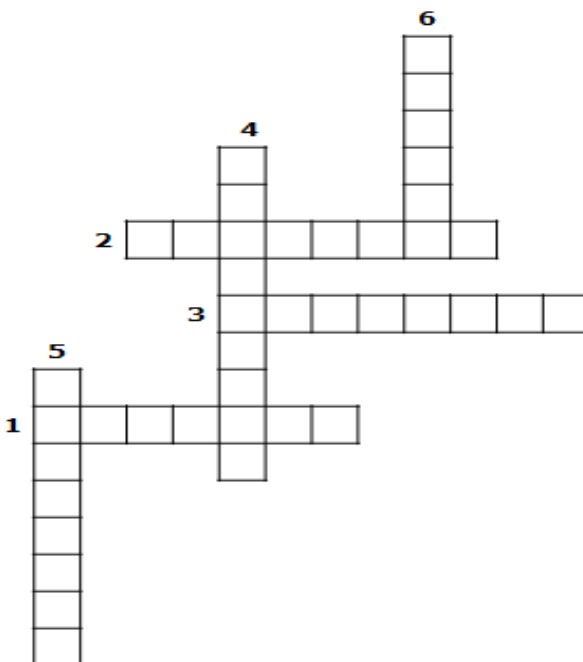

Instructions: Complete the following crossword according to the hints you are given.

Across

- Sally: You're a _____ native, you should know about these things!
- Sally: First, make sure that your social media pages are _____.
- Peter: Can you tell me how to set this up? That doesn't sound user-_____.

Down

- Sally: You're not going to meet anyone with a profile that is _____!
- Peter: Can you help me? I'm not an _____ of new technologies like you.
- Sally: Oh Peter, you might want to _____ your love life!

Let's Practice!

Peter is still unclear about meeting people online.

Instructions: Choose from the words below in order to complete the questions.

Word Bank

- search engine
- get started
- virtual reality
- how hard
- meet a girl online

- Do you know _____ it is to meet someone in this town?
- Can you tell me how to _____?
- Do you think that I can meet my next girlfriend through a _____?
- Don't you think that meeting people online sounds too much like _____?
- So, I should _____ first, and then take her to a bar?

Extension Activity

Write a dialogue about a new technological gadget that will change the world!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think about a new electronic device you would like to invent. Think about what it will do, and why it will be useful and popular.
- Describe the object to your partner and explain why it will change the world. Try to use as many words about technology as you can.
- Answer your partner's questions and offer suggestions on how to use your product.
- Write a dialogue (10 - 14 lines) about a technological invention that would change the world. It could be a funny gadget, something that will be useful in the home, etc.
- Exchange roles.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I can talk about technology and ask for clarification about technical problems.

☐ ☐

I can deal with technical problems and offer suggestions.

☐ ☐

I talk about what I want to do in the future.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- virtual reality (noun): a computer-generated simulation of real life that a user can interact with e.g. With virtual reality, you're going to have experiences you can't have in the real world.
- advocate (noun): a person who strongly supports a cause or an idea e.g. I just had the most amazing interview with a technology advocate.
- digital native (noun): someone who has used the Internet from an early age e.g. It's impossible to remember life before the Internet if you are a digital native.
- up-to-date (adjective): containing the latest information e.g. Not everything you read online is up-to-date.
- out-of-date (adjective): no longer valid or relevant e.g. You will find websites that are simply out-of-date.
- user-friendly (adjective): easy to use
e.g. You might want to check that the website is user-friendly.
- search engine (noun): an online tool that allows you to search for information e.g. Using trustworthy search engines may help you find what you really need.
- to reboot (verb): to start a computer again after a problem
e.g. Did you try rebooting your computer?

Learning Points

Dealing With Problems

There are several ways to ask for help with a technical problem in English. You can use polite and casual language to do this. You can also use questions within sentences to ask for clarification.

One way to discuss how to deal with problems is to say what you would do if you were in someone else's situation. It is particularly useful if you want to discuss a complicated technical problem.

If you want to ask for help, you can use the structure:

Can/ Could/ Do + you + verb + me (optional) + question word

Can you show me how this computer works?

Could you tell me where I can find reliable information?

You can also suggest advice by using the same structure:

Do you know where to go online for the best information?

Do you know what to look for when you check a website's accuracy?

If you want to offer advice and suggestions on how to solve technical issues, you can use modals like would, should or could to suggest solutions and offer assistance.

I would ...

I wouldn't ...

You could ...

You can also use must, might want to or Imperatives to strongly suggest a solution.

You might want to ...

You must ...

Always check ...

Asking for Help	Offering Advice
Can you tell me how to get started? Do you think that I can meet my next girlfriend through a search engine? Do you know how hard it is to meet someone in this town?	I think you should try meeting people online. Well, make sure that your social media pages are up-to-date. I have a few tips that may help you.

Learning Points

Talking About the Future

You can use four different tenses to talk about the future.

- When you talk about things that are not decided or when you make a decision at the moment of speaking for the future, you use the modal will.
- When you ask about intentions, you use going to.
- When you talk about things that are arranged, on the agenda or booked for the future, you use the Present Continuous tense.
- When you talk about schedules or timetables in the future, you use the Simple Present tense.

Verb Tense	Example
Future Tense (Will)	OK. I'll do that this weekend.
Going to	You're not going to meet anyone with a profile that is out-of-date!
Present Continuous Tense	I'm finishing a feature on new technologies for the magazine later.
Simple Present Tense	There's a singles night nearby next Tuesday.

